

Horacio Abramson studied medicine in the Buenos Aires University (UBA), where he graduated in 1973 as Doctor in Medicine. He started his career in 1979 as Thoracic Surgeon at “Antonio Cetrángolo Thoracic Institute” where since 1997 he is Chief of Thoracic Surgery Services. He is also an Associate Director of Thoracic Surgery career at Buenos Aires University and member of the Argentina Society of Thoracic Surgery and the Argentina Respiratory Medicine Society.

Since 1990 he has specialized in Chest Wall Malformations. In 2000 he begins utilizing the minimally invasive technique developed by Dr Nuss to resolve Pectus Excavatum disease. Since 2002 he developed an Apparatus and a particular technique for minimally invasive Pectus Carinatum repair.

His medicine studies include training experiences in Children Hospital of the King’s Daughters HDK, Norfolk, Va (D.Nuss, MD); Babies & Children Hospital of NY (C.J.H. Stolar, MD; S. Stylianos, MD) and Children’s Hospital, Boston (R.Schamberger, MD).